

In the Public Interest: The Developing Alliance between State and County Mental Health Authorities summarizes discussions that occurred at the third in a series of meetings that brought together state and county mental health agency leaders to explore their developing alliances to effectively manage, deliver and evaluate mental health services throughout the country. It provides technical assistance resource materials and other information designed to examine and strengthen these alliances in a period of rapid change brought about by managed care.